Editor's Message . . .

Whenever a new CUB is ready to be assembled, I get to read all the submissions ahead of time as I do my proofing and editing in preparation to compile the first draft. It never ceases to amaze me when I read about what our Veterans went through to ensure the safety of our country and the world. The soldiers who fought, the POWs, the injured and the fallen were, in many cases, just boys on the brink of manhood. My own uncle was one of them, and as I shared in a previous post, it affected me deeply to read the letters he sent back home to his family (his Italian mother and 10 siblings) saying how much he missed them. He signed each one with “S.W.A.K.” — Sealed With A Kiss. With only a pencil to use as a writing instrument, his handwriting labored, it looked like a child wrote those letters. And in a lot of ways, he still was.

Many of the soldiers, like my uncle, never made it home, and we should never forget their ultimate sacrifice. For those who did, we continue to owe a huge debt of gratitude and respect. You will read more about such experiences in this edition of The CUB. Our president, Janet Wood, describes a little more about what her father went through, sharing his own words and some drawings he did during his time as a soldier and POW. We often read about our men overseas during WWII, but there are some parts of the war that you may not have known about that happened right here in the United States. You’ll read about how our country remembers the past from our Pastor Chris Edmonds who attended and writes about the two-day event that is held every year in May in Carthage, Tennessee to commemorate the American soldiers during WWII who trained in “war games”.

It is so often that the ONLY way we know about major overseas historical events, like a world war, is to read about them. It is rare when we get to meet the people who were actually a part of that history. In this CUB, Randy Wood, our adjutant, explains more about the opportunity YOU have to meet, speak with and spend some time with the WWII Veterans who can attend the reunion, and/or the family members who attend in their stead. You receive The CUB for a reason — it may be because you want to stay in touch and be a part of remembering and sharing these stories. Here’s your chance to not just read about “it” but be part of “it”. Please, don’t miss this the opportunity for live interaction. I know you won’t regret it!

President's View . . .

I am one of the luckiest people around. I am blessed beyond measure — and do you know why? Because of men like my dad, who fought for my freedom, fought for me, even though they didn't know me or that I would be a part of their lives.

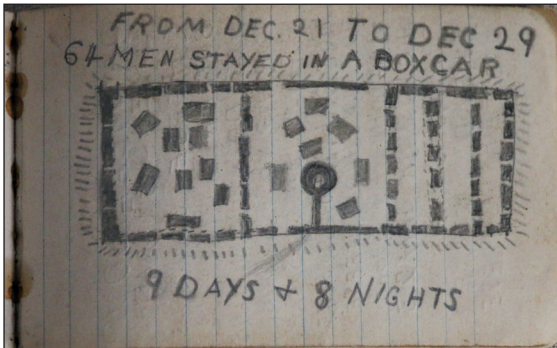

When the country called, my dad went. Did he ask questions or balk at having to go? No, he just went, because that's what you do when your family is in danger. My dad always thought when he went overseas that he would not come home. I am so thankful that he made it back.

I have my own personal history book, written by my father, Robert Wood. It tells me of the hardships that he went through, and it includes hand-drawn illustrations. One drawing shows the boxcars, in which 64 soldiers were imprisoned from December 21–29, 1944. Another is a drawing of the blower stove that they used to cook their “meals,” such as they were. And he drew pictures of the house that he was going to build when he got home. And of building 9B, Stalag IIIB, where he lived all those months.

He wrote about his food, what he ate, what he wanted to eat, and how he had a dream that he was at a restaurant with his sisters and a brother, only to wake up just as they were about to eat. “I’d just like to be home and eating period. I never knew life could be so miserable. I’m finding out a lot of things I never knew,” he wrote. Oh, my heart breaks for him and all of them, but I am so thankful.

President's View . . .

Dad talks about the air raid sirens going off, of bombs falling close to where they were, and how the building shook as each bomb hit its target. How could anyone sleep during that?

The Red Cross boxes that were sent to the POW camps always included packs of cigarettes. My dad and his friend Russ Lang never smoked, so they used the cigarettes as bargaining chips. Imagine starving, but trading food for cigarettes. I always used this as a way of emphasizing to my students about how addictive cigarettes are. But, in dad's diary, on March 23, 1945, my dad admits to lighting a cigarette. "I wonder what mom would think of that. If it's the only bad habit (to her notion) that I pick up here, it won't be too bad." I never knew him to smoke, and I doubt that he lit another one, they were too valuable. All of this shows just how strong these men were, how they became the greatest generation.

Let's not forget about the families back home, too. I know mom had a part in protecting the United States. She has talked about working in a secret room at RCA, building something for the war effort. Later, mom found out through a friend at church that they were making parts for bombs or missiles. When it was broadcast that the war was over, everyone went outside, into the pouring rain to celebrate. Everyone was so happy that it was finally over, and their soldiers were coming home.

When the war ended, the Germans fled camp, fearing their own capture. Dad and Russ went to the doctor's office, and they were able to get their POW pictures. I have often compared that photograph to his army photo taken prior to him going overseas. The look in my dad's eyes as a POW is haunting yet determined.

Being a POW was part of who my dad was. Even though he seldom talked about his time in the camps, I know that some of the things he endured affected his decisions later in life — how could they not? “When, yes, when is this long, drawn-out, miserable war going to end?,” he wrote on March 14, 1945. Liberation was March 30, 1945.

A friend of mine told me this diary needs to be in a museum, but, nope, its mine, written by my dad. I'm so thankful to have it.

These are just some of the stories you will hear about if you attend the reunion. When we had several veterans attend, the stories would go on forever. Now we are getting to where we must rely on the next generation to spread the word. I want to encourage you: come tell your stories, I want to hear them.

Hope to see you in Buffalo!

My dad's memoir — although not totally about WWII — is a snapshot in time that captures the world that made the “Greatest Generation.”

A farm boy from New York, dad joined the Army in 1940. He served in WWII with the Golden Lions and with many other units. He remained in the Army and served in Korea. He retired in the midst of the war in Vietnam. “Three on a match” if you know what I mean.

Dad passed away in December 2011, but not before he finished writing his memoir, by hand, on legal paper. I was the editor of Dad's book, and I admit, I did not devote enough time to it. It always felt like, if we got the book done, Dad would “be done.”

I dragged it out so long that Dad only got to see the first print proof for the book. He did not get to personally share his book with all of his friends and family. We did that for him. We made sure that everyone on his long list of friends and colleagues got a copy.

As an Associate member, I still get copies of The CUB and I flip through the pages and I remember the annual reunions we went to ... dad, mom, and their daughters. And later with sons-in-law and grandchildren.

Dad's story should be shared.

The book has been available on Amazon since 2011. We never advertised it. This is the right time and right place to do that.

Chaplain's Message . . .

Outdo one another in showing honor. Romans 12:10 ESV

Recently I had the blessing of speaking in Carthage, Tennessee, to kick-off Tennessee Maneuvers Remembered. The two-day event is held annually in May to commemorate our brave American soldiers during WWII who trained in “war games” in Tennessee. Between June 1941 and March 1944, middle Tennessee hosted 850,000 of the army’s finest for intense war drills including my father Roddie (422nd) and our own 106th Infantry Division.

Each year, the Smith County town of more than 2,300 residents and lots of guests transforms the city of Carthage into a bustling 1940s downtown filled with living history, military vehicles and equipment, “boogie woogie” entertainment, educational activities for children, artifact displays, authors and vendor areas, and war game reenactments between the Red and Blue Armies.

A notice to all residents and guests warns: “If you or your pet are sensitive to loud noises or you live or work in or near Carthage, please be aware the event includes firing blanks from WWII weapons. These loud noises will be heard during morning and afternoon weapons demonstrations and for an estimated 20 minutes during the mock battle which will take place between 2 and 3 p.m.”

The town goes all out for the event. It’s an inspiring time of remembrance and honor — as it should be.

The Tennessee Maneuvers were monumental. These were the most massive war games in U.S. history, the first time tank, anti-tank, and air forces had participated in large-scale military training. They turned green boys into valiant fighting men who helped save our world from tyranny. And the “games” rallied our nation to prepare for war and helped our boys be victorious over unimaginable evil.

Chaplain's Message . . .

recruits took part in various field exercises. The lack of rainfall made dust an enormous problem during moves and marches. When rain did arrive, it brought with it mud.

The training was rigorous. The recruits were shaped into men through specific simulations: marching in rapid fashion to gain better ground and surprise opposing troops; staging a counterattack against a larger opposing force; and retreating from a superior number of troops. One night the boys moved out in darkness and rain to defend an approximately twenty-two-mile line between Deason and Big Springs. Close-quarters marching at night in secrecy through rain and mud was difficult and taught the men a valuable lesson: weather was always a potential enemy.

They also put up with a lack of sleeping quarters. Several thousand soldiers slept wherever they could find space — parks, playgrounds, any place out of the path of jeeps, trucks, and tanks.

Toughened by the long, brutal marches in full gear and the stress of defending positions or advancing an attack, the troops learned how to hide from aerial observers, how to move with their units quickly, and how to conduct harassing rear-guard activity. They also learned that the games were dangerous. More than 250 soldiers and civilians lost their lives during the intense exercises.

But our boys made the best of it. Though food, water, fuel, and hygiene were constant concerns, their poise and good-natured humor helped make our troops ready for battle and the Tennessee Maneuvers memorable.

Everyone in middle Tennessee was awed by the sight of the war games: paratroopers gliding down in farmlands, thousands of infantrymen firing rifles and machine guns at each other — while tanks rumbled, artillery pieces boomed, and aircraft soared overhead. To the locals, the boys were amazing. They were more than U.S. soldiers in training. They were the best and brightest of America and the citizens of Tennessee embraced them as their own.

They are still our best and brightest — as are all of our soldiers past and present. They deserve our highest honor. Like the good folks of Tennessee then and now, may we long remember their service and sacrifice and “outdo one another” in showing them honor.

One of the best ways to honor them is to join us this August in Buffalo for our 76th Annual Reunion. Make plans now. I hope to see you there.

Every one of them deserves our highest honor.

All are more than heroes.

The Adjutant's Message . . .

The 106th Reunion is coming up fast. Have you made your room reservation and completed your registration for the reunion activities? If not, it is time to take action and get it done. If your veteran can travel to Buffalo, New York, then you can make it to the reunion. If you live within 50–75 miles, you are in a perfect location to be able to attend the reunion. If you live within flying distance, you can land at the Buffalo airport and a free shuttle will take you on a short ride to the Buffalo Airport Hotel. Easy-peasy! The best part is you will be at the reunion with your comrades and their families. We will be there to greet you and visit with you. We will have a hospitality room stocked with snacks and beverages to make your visit comfortable.

Our planned fun activities include a special cookout Thursday evening with hamburgers, hot dogs, and Buffalo wings made only like Buffalo can make them. We have a Corn Hole Tournament planned for you to participate in or sit back and relax watching while other members of your family and attendees participate.

We have tours to Niagara Falls to include a ride on the Maid of the Mist where you will be able to see the falls from the river surface. The Niagara Falls trip is included in the Registration package. We also plan to tour the Old Fort Niagara which is the oldest continuously occupied military site in the United States.

We will eat together every morning while we are there. We will have our cookout and Saturday night we will have our Banquet — all of which is included in our registration package.

On Saturday morning, we will present our Memorial Service. We will have the assistance of a Color Guard unit from the Buffalo area. We will honor our veterans, both present and not, including those who are living or those who have passed away.

Many of our previous attendees will be there and hopefully new attendees will be there for their first time. We have never had a reunion that did not have first-time people attend. Whenever I get the chance to talk to the family of a 106th veteran that has passed away, I tell them that coming to a reunion is like getting to visit with your dad again. Our dad passed away in 2006 and we get to see him in the comrades attending. It is special. But for that to work, please do your best to get your veteran to attend or come yourself to share their stories.

The information to register for the reunion events along with a registration form is in the center of this CUB magazine. The number to call the Buffalo Airport Hotel for room reservations is listed on page 18 in this CUB as well. When you call to make the room reservation, identify yourself as part of the 106th Infantry Division Association. Those who have made reservations say that it was a very smooth process.

Don't forget, we are planning a Silent Auction of crafts and items you own but think another could enjoy more, see page 23. All proceeds will go to the association to support The CUB magazine. Last year we made over $1,000, so this is a very meaningful thing in which to participate.

I realize this report is mostly an advertisement for the reunion, but we hope to have you attend both to honor our veterans and to rekindle friendships. We miss you! See you there, it should be great fun.

The Importance of a Mini Reunion

Our veterans will always remember December 16, 1944, when they were thrust into the chaos of war. The years may have thinned the ranks, but those who remain still have the pride of knowing they played an instrumental part in slowing — and ultimately defeating — the German war machine.

As it becomes more difficult for these older gentlemen to travel, so it is even more important we attempt to connect with our vets. Any way you can, even doing so virtually, would be a great way to honor, cherish, and remember all of our veterans.

Plan one in your area today!

Historian's Message . . .

Editor's Note: As we continue to look for someone to fill the Historian position, we are taking the opportunity to share stories from folks who have done research into finding out more about a family member or friend who is or was a veteran. The research done in search of information is often slow and may take years, and it is the very essence of what historians do, tracking down clues bit-by-bit, as they are unearthed. The process itself can lead to very interesting results in addition to the actual information learned. In this edition, Henry LeClair, son of Private "Frenchy" LeClair, 106th Div., 422nd, Co G, shares his story about how he is learning more about his father as a person and as a POW in the war.

Private Henry J. LeClair, (aka: "Frenchy") 106th Infantry Division, 422nd, Company "G"

by Henry M. LeClair

My dad was born in Lowell, Massachusetts, on November 25, 1925. He was one of nine children born to French Canadian parents who immigrated to the United States to work in the Lowell textile mills to make a better life for themselves. His parents, John and May LeClair, were born in the small town of Tignish on Prince Edward Island.

They raised nine children, eight boys and one girl. It was World War II and the Korean War and peacetime service that would separate the family for twenty years. The LeClairs felt a sense of duty to serve their adopted country. All the boys served honorably.

Before the war, dad was able to take advantage of one of the programs that Roosevelt's New Deal offered to young, single men at the time. In early 1942, when dad was seventeen, he participated in the Civilian Conservation Corp at Underhill

Pvt "Frenchy" LeClair, January 1944

Center, Vermont, where he was hired as a laborer and learned skills such as being a bulldozer operator, capping dynamite, and fighting forest fires and floods. From there he was discharged from the program and returned to his native Lowell where he was employed in military defense work.

Dad was inducted into the U.S. Army at the age of eighteen in January of 1944. Family records show that he received his training at Camp Blanding, Florida, where he completed his seventeen weeks of training in Heavy Weapons. Initially, he was first attached to Company "F," 210 Infantry Training Battalion. From there he was transferred to Camp Atterbury for further training and to await orders to ship out. It was there he joined the 106th Infantry Division, 422nd Regiment, Company "G."

In late September of 1944, he boarded a train from Camp Atterbury to Camp Myles Standish in Taunton, Massachusetts where he awaited transport overseas leaving from the port of New York.

The Division arrived in England. In the late days of November and early December, the 106th departed South Hampton, crossed the English Channel and headed for the mouth of the Seine River in Le Havre, France. The Division bivouacked in Rouen, France in the cold rain and mud. They then made their way to the small village of St. Vith, Belgium, three hundred plus miles from Le Havre where they relieved the 2nd Infantry Division.

It did not take long before the 106th found themselves in the throes of the most notorious battle of World War II, The Battle of the Bulge. By the afternoon of December 19, the Germans had captured the men of the 106th. Dad and 7,000 other prisoners were marched for several days and then taken by train transport on a journey that took about another week or so to the prisoner-of-war camp Stalag IV-B in Muhlberg, Germany, about four-hundred miles from where they were captured in St. Vith.

Not long after dad's imprisonment at Stalag IV-B in early January of 1945, the Germans "recruited" him along with 149 other prisoners and shipped them by train transport to the East German city of Dresden. They were housed in a makeshift prison camp famously known as Slaughterhouse-Five, at the time an actual slaughterhouse that provided food for the city.

In Dresden, dad was assigned work details doing manual labor around the city. During his imprisonment between the days of February 13–15, the Americans and British conducted aerial raids levelling most of the city. Though the number is disputed, tens of thousands of the city's inhabitants lost their lives. The only reason the slaughterhouse prisoners were spared was because their prison afforded them shelter from the bombing. When it was over, the Germans made the prisoners clean up the damage and pull bodies from the destruction.

It was not long after this military bombardment that the war ended. In April 1945, the Germans marched the prisoners out of the city toward the American lines. They stopped for a time in the town of Hellendorf where they stayed in the guest house dance hall. Soon after, the Germans deserted their prisoners, and dad and his fellow captives made their way to the American front lines.

Dad returned home June 11, 1945, and was repatriated. He received his honorable discharge in November of 1945.

After the war, he found work with the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, Local 39, AFL-CIO. He met and married Shirley Gagnon of Dracut, Massachusetts. Together they built a modest cape house with one bathroom and raised eight children: seven boys and one girl.

In the years that followed, he established his own painting business and supported his large family. All eight children attended private Catholic school and were afforded summer vacations at Salisbury beach on the coast of Massachusetts. Dad spent the summers painting various summer cottages while his family got to stay the entire summer. He would swim in the ocean as part of his post-war physical therapy.

Mom and dad divorced around 1973 after twenty-five years of marriage. Soon after the divorce, dad stopped drinking, got sober and maintained his sobriety until he died in October of 1981 at the age of fifty-six.

Sadly, when he passed, I knew little about his experience in the war. At the time, I knew that he was in the war, was captured in the Battle of the Bulge and sent to the famous prisoner-of-war camp Slaughterhouse-Five, came home, and started a family. I do not recall him ever talking about it, but I do remember the wound on his leg. I am not sure if the wound was from a bullet or shrapnel, but I remember it was fairly large, measuring maybe a couple inches in diameter.

During the spring of 1972, when I was nine, dad took my mother and me to see the newly released movie Slaughterhouse-Five. In my young mind I did not know what to make of the movie, so I do not recall asking a lot of questions. The book and the movie are a bit complex for any young mind to try and make sense of. Years later, as I became an adult, I wanted to know more about what he had been through during his life in the Army. All that our family had were a few military documents, his uniform, and some medals, and one especially important letter from Kurt Vonnegut, Jr. In Kurt's letter to my dad, he talks about their experiences in Dresden, and being held in the slaughterhouse. Kurt talks about his return visit to Dresden with his fellow Slaughterhouse-Five prisoner Bernie O'Hare. He goes on to mention that dad could "write one hell of a moving letter." It is my hope that one day I might be able to locate dad's letter to Kurt written sometime in February of 1971. I suspect that dad's letter would reveal more answers to questions I have that he may not have shared with his family.

I am the youngest in our family of eight. My older siblings know a bit more than I do about what happened to dad during the war. I often speak to a few of my older brothers, and they are glad to offer any information they can recall. With the information they give me, I am slowly piecing together the puzzle that is dad's story. Along the way, I have hit the lottery in some places and roadblocks in others.

As I get older, I find myself more curious and keep digging up new information our family never knew. It is fascinating at times to make small discoveries that help confirm information that we had and discover new information that we knew nothing about.

In 2014, I was having a discussion with my in-laws about dad's military service and wondering aloud how I could put more of the puzzle pieces together regarding what he went through. It was then my mother-in-law suggested that I check to see if his Infantry Division still had reunions. She and her dad would often go to his reunions. She thought that would be a good place to start gathering more information from those who were right alongside him during the war. I came home and did a quick search to see if in fact the reunions were still taking place. Well, they did and still do!

The first reunion my husband Rhys and I attended was in Charleston, South Carolina in 2015. Attending the 69th reunion was eye opening. It was my hope to learn more about my dad's experience and it did not disappoint. The Sheaner family was the first family we met at a reception one evening. I was fortunate enough to meet Herbert (Herb) Sheaner, 422nd, Company "G." Herb was a wealth of information having fought alongside my dad, in the same regiment and the same company. I would never be able to ask my dad specific questions about his personal experience but in talking with Herb I knew that I was so incredibly lucky to have the opportunity to speak with a veteran who had firsthand knowledge of their war experience and that was good enough for me. That weekend I gathered vast amounts of information from both Herb and his son Mike and other veterans for which I will forever be grateful. Without them it would have been so much harder to understand my dad's military history. That was the start of my project to compile as much accurate information as I could to hand down to our family.

Since our first 106th reunion in 2015, Rhys and I have made a couple of major trips to Europe to visit the places where dad fought and was captured. In 2016, we made a trip to Dresden, Germany. We had the opportunity to meet with Dresden resident and tour guide Danilo Hommel. Danilo has exclusive access to the complex that once was Slaughterhouse-Five. On our visit there, we were able to visit the buildings and grounds of where my dad was held prisoner. It was chilling to know that I, his youngest son, was able to stand in the exact same place where my dad and his fellow prisoners experienced so much suffering, pain, and trauma. These were just young men, most of whom may have never left their hometowns, and were transported to a hell beyond words.

In May of 2019, we were fortunate to travel to St. Vith, Belgium. It was there where we were able to meet with Doug Mitchell, expert military and battlefield tour guide, and Belgian 106th Infantry Division liaison Carl Wouters. We spent three days touring the villages and countryside that was once the battlefield of one of the most famous battles of World War II, the Battle of the Bulge. We are so grateful for the time and energy these men devote to keeping the memory alive of the men and women who fought to liberate Europe and defeat the Germans.

During these years of information gathering and research, I would report back to my brothers with information I had been gathering. I often talk to my brother Bob about my progress. One day he realized the importance of the work that I had been doing and suggested that I take dad's uniform and medals that had been in his care since my father's death.

In another of our conversations, he had recalled that every Christmas we would receive Christmas cards from the Topicz family in Cincinnati, Ohio. We wondered at that time if dad's war buddy Joe Topicz might still be alive and available to contact. After that conversation, I went about trying to locate Joe and came across his obituary. It was then I thought I would try to reach out to his only daughter who was listed in the obituary.

One Sunday morning I spent some time searching for Carol Moses in Cincinnati and came across a few. I randomly called the ones I could with phone numbers they had listed and left messages. That Sunday afternoon I received a call back from the Carol I was looking for. She was shocked that I had found her and said she had remembered my dad very well because he would visit them through the years. We shared our stories about our dads and I asked her for a favor. I told her of my memory of dad always being a great correspondent and my brother Bob remembering their Christmas cards through the years. I asked if she may have any such letters or cards from him that may have survived all these years. She said she did not know offhand but mentioned that she lived in her parents' home since she had inherited it. She said her mother saved everything so she would look in her basement to see if any of those keepsakes had survived.

A few days later Carol contacted me to say she had found correspondence from dad that he had sent to them all those years ago. I was amazed and excited to know that I would be able to get a glimpse of what dad was feeling and writing down all those years ago. Carol sent me what she had — various letters and now vintage Christmas cards. Each letter and card showed a little snippet of dad's life and family during that time.

I have discovered many things during my research about dad. I am finding and compiling valuable information regarding his short life, and I considered these little treasures. The people I meet along the way have been so generous with their efforts and time, for which I am grateful.

To those of you who took the time to read this, I say thank you. The brave soldiers who fought this war need to be recognized. I am grateful to the 106th Infantry Division Association and the editors of The CUB magazine for giving me the opportunity to share my dad's story and giving him the recognition that he deserves.

Respectfully,
Henry M. LeClair,
1st Vice President, 106th Inf. Div. Asso.
Son of Private Henry J. LeClair,
"Frenchy", 422nd, Company "G"

Tour Descriptions

OLD FORT NIAGARA —
Thursday, August 24
10 am — Meet at the front of the hotel.

We will be carpooling to Old Fort Niagara. Those who are planning to drive will provide carpool transportation to those who need a ride to the Fort. If we enter the fort with 12 or more people, we get a guided tour and the tickets are $15, pay at the gate. Military ID should get you an additional discount. Time is our own, so we can stay as long or as little as we like. Average time to tour is 2 hours. Go back to the hotel as you wish, hop in cars as they plan to leave, but do not forget our special Cookout event at the hotel that evening!

Explore the grounds of the oldest most continuously occupied military fort in North America! At Old Fort Niagara, you'll take a step back in time on a self-guided (or with 12 people or more a guided) tour to explore the rich history of the historical fort. Old Fort Niagara was once occupied by the British, French, and Native Americans. It's location along the mouth of the Niagara River and Lake Ontario was vital, as whoever controlled Old Fort Niagara also controlled who was allowed to continue westward to the central U.S. Original 18th century buildings still stand and reenactments happen daily.

Adventure awaits your visit to Niagara Falls State Park! Upon departure from your hotel, you will travel to Niagara Falls State Park to participate in one of the most iconic experiences that Niagara has to offer. Hang on tight as you feel the churning water below you make its way down the Niagara River. The “Maid of the Mist” Boat Ride is about 20 minutes in duration. After your cruise concludes, you can climb a series of steps next to the American Falls to the Crow’s Nest for more of a multi-sensory experience, or you can catch the elevators back up and spend some time taking in the gorgeous panoramic views of the American, Bridal Veil, and Horseshoe Falls from the New York State Observation Deck. Ever Been to Buffalo? Join us there for the 76th Annual Reunion There's tons to do and see

Buffalo, NY

What is Buffalo famous for — beside being the city where our past president Bob Pope lives and is the site of our 2023 reunion?

Buffalo is one of only three cities in the U.S. with a radial street pattern. Buffalo is known as the largest flour milling city in the world. Buffalo's nightlife doesn't call it quits until 4 a.m., rather than 2 a.m. like most other cities in the U.S. Buffalo is the home to the New Era Cap Company.

Buffalo is the second-largest city in the U.S. state of New York behind New York City and the seat of Erie County. It lies in Western New York, at the eastern end of Lake Erie, at the head of the Niagara River, on the United States border with Canada. (source: Wikipedia)

You are invited to participate in our Silent Auction to be held during our 76th annual reunion, August 23 to 27, in Buffalo, New York.

If you have a hobby or a craft that you love to do, then consider sharing. Last year's Silent Auction consisted of objects made by hand, found items, and items someone thought you would cherish. We made almost $1,200! — all going to our association to fund The CUB magazine.

106th Infantry Division's Online "Message Board"

Looking for information about a 106th veteran?

Do you have information about one you'd like to share?

The 106th Infantry Division has their own online "message board" (set up by Jim West) for people to write an inquiry looking for comrades or for people who might have known a relative who is now gone. Sign up is free and easy!

Association member Connie Pratt Baseman, daughter of Lt. Gerald Pratt (Field Artillery) has been one of three people helping to manage the message board. Sadly, some inquiries sit unanswered when the answers may be out there with a reader of The CUB who doesn't use a computer. Maybe you can take the time to read the board and reach out to a veteran that you know to try and get the requested information.

You can find messages and other search requests on the 106th Message Board

My Father, Joseph Henry Vaughn

by Roxanne Vendegna

My father, Joseph Henry Vaughn, was in the 424th Regiment, 591st Field Artillery Battalion. He was an Artillery Scout 761 Forward Observer. He entered Fort Sheridan on March 18, 1943, and was discharged on December 22, 1945, at Camp Grant in Rockford, Illinois. He married my mother, Gloria, right after coming home from the war, and they raised six children.

Joseph was from Benton, Wisconsin and never left home until he enlisted at 18 years old. He felt it was his job to fight for our country after the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. He did not talk about the war hardly at all. He told us the front lines were cold, confusing, and scary. He felt there was no place like the USA and believed that until he died in 2021.

Your gifts are essential to maintaining The CUB magazine in its current format with high-quality content and tri-annual delivery. The cost of printing and mailing each edition of The CUB exceeds our current level of giving. Therefore, we encourage all readers to make an annual contribution, as you are able, to help defray the cost of printing and mailing.

Those Members who contribute will have their names (only, no amounts will be shown) published in the next CUB. You can donate as much or as little as you can and as often as you like. By donating, you are helping perpetuate the 106th ID Association.

BROWNING, EARLE L.

DHQ/AG

Date of death: October 4, 2022

Earle Lynwood

Browning, age 98, passed away at his home in Mount Airy, MD. He was the husband of the late Mary Helen, his wife of 62 years. Born on February 28, 1924, he was the son of the late Monroe and Nannie Browning. His father was born in 1873, eight years after the end of the Civil War and three years before Custer's Last Stand. Mr. Browning was the last of eight siblings. He graduated from Frederick High School and attended Vanderbilt University under the Army Specialized Training Program. He served in the 106th Infantry Division during WWII and received four battle stars, including one for his participation in the Battle of the Bulge. He attended college under the GI Bill of Rights, earning a BS in Accounting. Mr. Browning retired in 1979 after 38 years of Federal Service. At that time, he was the comptroller of the National Cancer Institute. He was very involved in managing the increase in funding by Congress in 1971, when President Nixon replaced biological warfare research with cancer research. He was a long-time member of the Providence Methodist Church, serving on a number of committees, a member of many organizations and a recipient of numerous awards. Mr. Browning dearly loved his family and received outstanding support from all of them. From time to time he would say to them, "Don't put off to tomorrow what you can do today." He and Mary Helen loved to travel. He told his family that when his time is up he would like to die with his boots on, either among his Christmas Trees or vegetable garden. When he turned 90, many people asked him the secret of living so long; his answer was always the same: "Stay active and love everyone." He is survived by his daughter Lynette, son Gary and their spouses, seven grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

From Chris Edmonds, Chaplain, 106th Infantry Division Association

Spanning seven decades and linking a sprawling cast of unknown heroes from every corner of the country, NO SURRENDER is an unforgettable story of a father's extraordinary acts of valor that saved thousands of American soldiers in the treacherous final days of World War II and a son's journey to discover them.

Roddie Edmonds, a humble soldier from East Tennessee, rarely spoke about his experiences with the 106th Infantry during World War II. Not even his son Chris knew the full details of Roddie's capture at the Battle of the Bulge or his captivity in two Nazi POW camps.

Sparked by his daughter's family history project, Chris embarked on a years-long journey in a race against time to interview surviving POWs under Roddie's command and retracing his father's footsteps, from Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where a boyish Roddie transformed into a seasoned leader of men, to the patch of grass near Ziegenhain, Germany, where he looked evil in the eye and dared a Nazi to shoot.

A quintessential American story of bravery, compassion, and righteousness, NO SURRENDER is a shining example of the redemptive power of moral courage in a celebration of faith, family and selfless service.
