Editor's Message . . .

I continue to be amazed at the resiliency of the human spirit. Those of you reading this edition of The CUB have lived through a world-wide pandemic. There was much suffering and my heart goes out to every family who lost someone to this awful virus. Now, with more than 50 percent of our population vaccinated, we feel as if we're coming out the other side of a very long, very dark tunnel. For me, it felt great to hug family and friends again! Of course, we still must maintain vigilance and practice safety measures, but we see the light!

I feel especially blessed to be able to contribute in some small way to bring news from other veterans and from our membership to you. One thing that became very apparent to me this past year is how much we all need to stay in communication and to feel connected. With this edition of The CUB, our biggest hope, and message, is that you will continue to feel connected. Not only by the stories you read, or the information that you may be able to provide to a family member looking for answers about their loved-ones, but, if you're able, by attending the upcoming reunion scheduled to be held at the Kansas City Hilton, September 8–12, 2021. If you haven't done so yet, fill out the registration packet, choose from the many fun and interesting activities listed, and join with other 106th veterans, family members, and friends to connect in person. As Randy Wood, our adjutant, said in his message, if you are a veteran who cannot travel, please consider having a family member represent you. There is much camaraderie at the reunions providing an experience that will stay with you and can help buoy you through rough times. It also provides an opportunity for us to remember and pay homage to those we have lost, during the war and after, and to be reflective about why their sacrifices are so meaningful.

As we approach a new Independence Day, I not only think of my dad, who was born on July 4, 1933, and was a proud Marine until the day he died, but of all of those who have helped to maintain our nation's freedoms. Thank you, Chris Edmonds, for your message in this edition, put so eloquently, to remind us of that. I hope you all will be able to spend time with family and friends as you celebrate July 4th and seeing the light at the end of the tunnel.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL... You never can tell what the weather will be like tomorrow, the day after or next week. You never can tell, for sure, how you will feel tomorrow, the day after or next week. With the weather you never can tell because of environmental influence like lakes, rivers, oceans or mountains. With health you never can tell for sure because of influences such as age, illnesses, not enough or too much sleep, aches and pains. The weather and our age can both affect how we feel.

“Exercise and a positive attitude are keys to a vet’s long life” were the words headlining a story in the local paper. “Robert Pope, 97, survived encephalitis four decades ago, prostate cancer during the last decade and Covid-19 over the winter. He also has diabetes, congestive heart failure and COPD. His secret to success is exercise and a positive

Live as people who are free, not using your freedom as a cover-up for evil, but living as servants of God.

1 Peter 2:16

There's nothing better than freedom. That's what my father Roddie Edmonds said. I've never forgotten it. He should know. As a 19-year-old kid, he skipped college, joined the Army, advanced to Master Sergeant, trained for war, landed in the Ardennes with the 106th Infantry, took the fight to Hitler, and barely missed several appointments with death. Millions of other brave American boys we call dad or granddad did the same.

My father made his decision to enlist several months before Pearl Harbor. During his years at Knoxville High School he served in the Junior ROTC program. He enjoyed being a soldier and was good at it. He also felt the bitter winds of war that threatened his freedom and love of country.

On September 2, 1940, six months before my father enlisted in the Army, thousands of cheering admirers jammed "flag-draped Gay Street" in dad's home town of Knoxville, Tennessee to see President Franklin D. Roosevelt (FDR) and Mrs. Roosevelt pass through the city on their way to dedicate the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Boy Scouts kept excited pedestrians off the Gay Street Bridge while a few industrious kids hawked the Stars and Stripes: "Everyone needs a flag! Only five cents! Republicans and Democrats!" My father, a recent high school graduate working downtown as a clerk, joined the crowd as the presidential motorcade passed.

Only hours before the president arrived, two Royal Navy destroyers had been sunk by Nazi U-boats in the North Sea, and the Luftwaffe had sent more than two hundred bombers and fighters to pummel London and other English cities.

During the dedication ceremony at Newfound Gap, a mile high on the Tennessee–North Carolina state line, President Roosevelt offered this dire warning: "The greatest attack that has ever been launched against individual freedom is nearer the Americas than ever before. If we are to survive, we cannot be soft. Squirrel rifles are no longer adequate to defend the nation. We must prepare in a thousand ways." And prepare they did.

Chaplain's Message . . .

Then came the surprise Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941 that killed more than 2,400 Americans and roused a sleeping giant. Across the nation young men — driven by outrage, anger, and love of country — rushed to enlist in the army, navy, and marines. They signed up to fight in Europe and the Pacific. College students delayed their degrees, recent grads left their jobs, and kids in high school, too young to serve, lied about their age at recruitment centers. Even veterans of the First World War and old men who had never served in the military were ready to go fight. Within days, the ranks of the military swelled by tens of thousands. Total strangers from every city and village, holler and hillside, bonded as one to fight for a singular purpose: preserve freedom.

They fought not from force but because they should. Serving as an American soldier was the right thing to do. It still is. Driven by love of country, family, and freedom, our WWII warriors gladly defended America. It was their duty. Saving the world was their honor. Stopping tyranny was their mission. They risked all because freedom was worth it. They did it gladly and they did it well.

What would make my young father and millions like him join the military and go to war to serve their country?

It was because of their duty, honor, goodness, and their love for freedom in America. The freedom they secured was not free. Far too many of our heroes never came home. They gave their all for all we have. Their devotion is holy — the Lord's favor is eternal — our debt of love is boundless — our freedom priceless and precious.

Freedom is still priceless today. The First Amendment to our U.S. Constitution guarantees five precious freedoms. It protects speech, religion, press, assembly, and the right to petition the government. These five freedoms make us the freest and most blessed people in the world.

FDR said, "In all of the far-flung operations of our Armed Forces, the toughest job has been performed by the average, easy-going, hard-fighting young American who carries the weight of battle on his own young shoulders. It is to him that we and all future generations must pay grateful tribute."

As we celebrate America in 2021, let us remember and love our average, easy going, hard fighting, and freedom loving heroes from World War II. And may we as a grateful generation, secure the path of freedom forged by the greatest generation with our own measure of duty, honor, goodness, and love of country. There's nothing better than freedom.

IT'S A GO! The majority of the board of directors met a few days ago to discuss the 2021 reunion to be held at the Kansas City Hilton by the airport September 8–12, 2021. Everything seemed to be falling into place well enough to say, the reunion is expected to take place as it had been planned two years ago. The Hilton hotel has assured us that every precaution will be taken to maintain a safe environment. Our meeting rooms and our Hospitality Room will be of sufficient space to allow for proper social distancing. It is not too early to make your hotel reservation and complete the reunion registration.

The reunion begins on Wednesday, September 8, with a Kansas City tour. You may sign up for the tour on your registration form. Later that day, there will be a board meeting from 5 until 6 pm followed by a Meet-and-Greet Mixer in our hospitality room for all 106th and 104th attendees. There will be light snacks and beverages available.

Thursday, September 9, starts with a complimentary breakfast followed by two activities from which you can choose. First, there will be a tour to the Steamboat Arabia Museum from 9:30 am to early afternoon. Then, that evening, there is a Dinner Theater scheduled. You may choose either or both activities, and you register and pay for them with the Reunion Registration form. View the full details later in The CUB magazine, (page 21).

Friday, September 10, starts with breakfast and then a tour to the WW1 Memorial Museum. All 106th attendees are invited and encouraged to attend this tour. This tour is included with your registration packet, at no extra charge. It is a very good tour starting at 9:30 am and ending approximately 2:30 pm. Lunch is on your own. That evening, the ever popular Beer Bust organized by the 104th Infantry Division is planned. All 106th Infantry Division attendees are invited to participate. Light snacks and beverages will be provided. The most fun is had by participating in the 104th raffle of various items and the silent auction of items which are mostly provided by 106th attendees. If you have an artistic talent or you have a gift that you think would be of value to others, please consider donating it to 106th silent auction. All funds raised from the respective bids will go to the treasury of that association group. Our proceeds will go to the 106th treasury to support the perpetuation of our CUB Magazine as well as the Association. The CUB is our most important form of communication. In many ways it is the glue that holds our association together. There are no fees to receive The CUB either online or in print. Please consider a donation to ensure its existence.

Saturday, September 11, is a big day. After the complimentary breakfast, we will have our Memorial service where all veterans of the 106th are honored. Our Chaplain, Chris Edmonds, will present a moving Memorial message. The banquet will follow that evening. We will be having our own banquet and the 104th will have their banquet separately. There will be a cash bar before the meal. Our program will include a message from our current president of two years, Bob Pope (590 FABN). We will also honor the recipient(s) of the Golden Lion. This will be followed by an introduction of our incoming president. We will have introductions of first-time attendees.

The last reunion day will be Sunday, September 12. In the morning, we will share our last complimentary breakfast and the friendship of all the attendees, wishing all a safe trip home.

While the 2020 virtual event provided a great solution to the problem of not meeting in person, we hope we never again have to have a virtual reunion and memorial service. The efforts of the board, and most definitely the efforts of Carl and Sofie Wouters, for putting together the 2020 Virtual Memorial Service are greatly appreciated. Thanks to all the 106th veterans and their descendants for participating in the service. It was a great effort, and you did wonderfully. The service has been viewed by people from all over the United States as well as the world. The best part is that it is still available to view by anyone who is interested and will be for generations to come. Just go to our website to find the You Tube link.

Now we are so excited to have this reunion to see you and speak with you in person!

This message is to the younger generations of our veterans of the 106th Infantry Division:

If you have never attended one of our reunions, please consider doing so NOW. If your veteran can attend, make every effort to see that he gets there. If you have lost your veteran, or he is unable to attend, then come yourself and bring all of your interested family members. A day at the reunion with the veterans who can attend is like a day with your Dad or your Grandfather. Our chances to do this are getting slimmer as each day passes. Do not miss the opportunity.

Details of the reunion are in this CUB, starting on *page 18*, as well as the Reunion Registration Form. Information to make the Hotel reservation is in this CUB. Make yours today.

Finding Needles in Haystacks

By Carl Wouters, Belgium Liaison

Editor's Note: As we continue our search to fill the Historian role, Carl Wouters has submitted this article that takes us from the present to the past during a once in a lifetime trip for a dad and his son. As in previous articles, this one involves some sleuthing on the part of our author to help a WWII veteran "reconnect with old memories."

Over the course of the past 15 years, I have been fortunate to meet with several Golden Lion veterans in Europe. During these trips, these men often recounted stories or anecdotes about specific incidents and expressed a wish to revisit those spots. In some cases, this can be like finding a needle in a haystack — difficult but not entirely impossible.

Such a story is that of Juan Mejia, a rifleman in Company "L" of the 424th infantry regiment. In April 2016, his youngest son, Art took his dad on a "once-in-a-lifetime" trip back to Europe, retracing his footsteps as a young GI caught in Hitler's final offensive. Doug Mitchell and I guided him back to the spots he had been in the winter of 1944.

Juan grew up on a hardscrabble farm in Texas as the son of Mexican immigrants. After Pearl Harbor, two of his brothers had gone into the military to serve their country. In 1943, shortly after his eighteenth birthday, Juan also enlisted in the army. Originally a member of the 65th Infantry Division, Juan joined the 106th shortly before it sailed overseas.

On the morning of 16 December 1944, he found himself in the L-Company outpost when the full force of the German attacking force was launched at him and his buddy. Since he hadn't been in the company that long, he didn't know the name of the other man in the outpost. By corresponding with 106th veteran and association member Harry Martin, we found out that the other GI had been Harry Arpajian. Arpajian was killed that morning when he ran back to alert the company of the German breakthrough, leaving Juan alone in the hole. "He never came back," Juan recalled, "and I never knew what became of him." Juan was astounded to learn the name and sad fate of his foxhole companion for the first time after 71 years. Arpajian is buried at the U.S. Cemetery of Margraten in the Netherlands. By identifying Arpajian we found one needle in the haystack. (Note: We later connected with Gino DeSalvatore, nephew of Harry Arpajian. See The CUB Vol. 74, No 2, for a story of his visit to his uncle's gravesite in December 2018.)

Historian's Message . . .

Juan described being showered with hot shrapnel from Screaming Meemies that first morning of the Battle of the Bulge. He caught a big chunk, which was still smoldering, on his shoulder. Luckily, the shrapnel had lost most of its deadly force so Juan was able to simply “brush it off.” During the difficult withdrawal movement from the heights overlooking Bracht, Belgium, Juan Mejia became separated from the rest of the company. He wandered through the icy forest alone for several hours before encountering another group of GIs who were lost like he was. When they finally made it back to friendly lines together, Juan found that his feet had frozen solid, with his socks and leather boots sticking to the skin of his feet. A medical officer took one look at his feet and declared that the war was over for Juan.

While we were driving through the Ardennes forest, Juan shared another anecdote about an event that had clearly impacted his young life. It occurred at the army hospital where he had been admitted as a patient after being taken off the front lines with trench foot. He recalled lying in his hospital bed one night when suddenly a huge explosion rocked the building. The concussion of the impact lifted him three feet off the bed, he said, and covered the room with deadly shreds of broken glass from the nearby windows. After realizing what had happened, Juan looked down and found himself lying on a bed of broken glass. By some miracle, he did not have a scratch on him. God had been looking out for him. It was his wish to find that place again. Unfortunately, Juan did not have any recollection of the location or time of the incident. He just knew that it was a big hospital in what he believed to be a large Belgian town.

Source: “Medicine under Canvases,”
(The Sosland Press, 1949)

Late in the evening at the hotel in Winterspelt, after a day of touring, I delved into “morning reports” and unit records which unfortunately yielded no further details. We were to take Juan around other parts of the Ardennes the next day, so the search continued.

At the high point of the Battle of the Bulge, dozens of fields, convalescent and evacuation hospitals operated in the Ardennes and Luxembourg. We found reference to hospitals in Huy, Spa, Liège, Verviers, Dinant, Eupen and Esch-sur-Alzette. Several of these hospital installations had been fired upon during the offensive. The Red Cross was definitely not immune to enemy fire. Eventually, by narrowing down the time frame and by creating a flow chart for the casualties of the 106th Division, we were able to pin it down to two main possibilities, being either at Verviers or Liège. Both towns housed several rear echelon installations and were in the direct path of the dreaded V1 “Buzz Bombs” and V2 rockets. After taking all the facts into account, we figured that as a trench foot casualty Juan must have been admitted to the 77th Evacuation Hospital, known to have been in Verviers at the time of the Battle of the Bulge. Interestingly enough, in an online unit history for the 77th, there was a small photograph that showed a GI standing in a bomb crater outside the hospital facility.

The next morning at breakfast, we showed Juan the photograph and he nodded that this could very well be the place! We decided to take our chances and head to Verviers to find the hospital. After some searching, we arrived at the front gate of the impressive Haute École Charlemagne, situated on the hillside overlooking Verviers. It being a Saturday, the school premises were closed. When we noticed light in the room next to the entrance, a small climb and a few taps on the window attracted the attention of the school secretary working inside, who apparently was preparing school festivities. After explaining we had a WWII veteran with us, she graciously granted us full access to the school building, and we were free to wander around. After setting one step inside the building and noticing the unique vintage tiling in the corridors and the specific view on the school yard, Juan immediately recognized the building as the very one in which he had been a patient in December 1944. He would know, as he had spent many days observing the building's architecture from his bedside.

There was however one last mystery. The WWII era photo showed a wall of the building which had a different structure and which we couldn't immediately locate. We concluded it must have been the back of the building. The secretary led me through a side exit to the park area, which was heavily overgrown. Through the trees, that area did offer an excellent view on the back of the building, which perfectly matched the WWII era photograph with the bomb crater.

Apparently on New Year's Day 1945, a German bomber dropped its ordnance over Verviers, narrowly missing the 77th Evacuation Hospital and landing in the park area of the school. The massive explosion blew out all the windows in the building, showering the patients, nurses and doctors with glass shrapnel. Juan was ecstatic that we had been able to find the spot after 71 years. It was the culmination of his visit.

Juan's son's dream of providing his Dad with a "once-in-a-lifetime" trip really came true and we had truly found the needle in the haystack — perhaps even a few more.

Two years after his trip, Juan tragically died when he was hit by a car while crossing the street with his wheelchair. He was a proud member of the Greatest Generation, having served his country with honor. I feel fortunate to have been able to contribute a little to making his first and only trip back to Belgium extra special, by helping him reconnect with old memories. It was a small thing we could do as a token of appreciation for what he and the other members of the 106th did to help liberate Europe.

Warm Memories of Cold Spring

by Beatrice Fulton Keeber

A Golden Lion's war experiences forged a boy into a man. But what really defined him as the person he became was his "happily ever after" with his family and his 60-year love story. Warm Memories of Cold Spring is not a war story! It's a smile-producing tale of "what came next" that reminds other vets of their own "afters," their children and grandchildren of Dad's and Mom's or Grandpa's and Grandma's lives.

Pfc. Willard H. Keeber, with Co. G, 424th Infantry Regiment, 106th Infantry Division, was placed on-line December 11, 1944 near St. Vith, Belgium, two months past his 19th birthday, five days prior to the German Tank Assault that smashed directly through his position, launching the Battle of the Bulge. This is the story of a veteran's legacy that left his world better than he found it.

106th Infantry Division's Online "Message Board"

Looking for information about a 106th Veteran?

Do you have information about one you'd like to share?

The 106th Infantry Division has their own online "message board" (set up by Jim West) for people to write an inquiry looking for comrades or for people who might have known a relative who is now gone. Sign up is free and easy!

Association member Connie Pratt Baseman, daughter of Lt. Gerald Pratt (Field Artillery) has been one of three people helping to manage the message board. Sadly, some inquiries sit unanswered when the answers may be out there with a reader of The CUB who doesn't use a computer. Maybe you can take the time to read the board and reach out to a veteran that you know to try and get the requested information.

You can find messages and other search requests on the 106th Message Board at:

This international cargo is the largest collection of pre-Civil War artifacts in existence, and the display keeps growing! Enjoy lunch on your own at the museum's cafe, or at the adjacent City Market. This historic area features a farmer's market, as well as gift shops, restaurants, and galleries.

A Day in the Life of Paul Thompson

Submitted by Paul Thompson

My name is Paul Thompson. Together with my fellow Recon Troopers, I participated in defending Grosslangenfeld during the first days of the “Bulge.” I fired a 30cal light machine gun from bunker “lennie7able” located to the south and west of town.

I am writing to you this morning from my backyard patio where just a bit ago, I finished playing a Memorial Day “concert” for my neighbors on my bassoon — all military in nature: marches, anthems and hymns. It went over well, I had a lot fun and apparently my neighbors liked it as well — no catcalls, no tomatoes. I’m going to do it again on the 4th and, perhaps, on VJ Day and Labor Day as well.

As to my personal situation: I’m doing well. I live alone in the home that we purchased 59 years ago. I am disabled and don’t drive anymore [to the vast relief of my children]. Habitat for Humanity has graciously installed grab bars and railings in strategic locations, so I have no problems taking care of the daily chores and whatever else has to be done to keep me up and about. I have absolutely no interest in a retirement home and fully intend to remain here until they carry me out feet first, under a sheet. My children live nearby and visit me regularly, bringing groceries and other necessities. All in all — Life is Good! My prayer is that all of you other veterans reading this are doing as well.

A few days ago, May 16th to be exact, was my birthday — 96 years. My grandson from Spokane was in town, and together with all the rest of my family, we demolished a dinner of roast chicken with “fixin’s” topped off with one of my favorites — rhubarb crumble. My daughter made the treat, and to avoid alerting the Fire Dept., we topped it with a single candle. We all had a great time together, and perhaps the best of all, there were plenty of leftovers, so I didn’t have to cook for a while.

Spring has been especially beautiful here in Richfield, Minnesota this year. This city abounds in flowering trees: crabapples, plums, flowering cherries. When they are in full bloom, a drive along Nicollet Avenue is unforgettable. The street is lined with various shades of pink and white. Lovely. The display was especially fine this year, the cool weather prolonged the display for the better part of week. Best Regards to all.

Bill Keeber

Submitted by Beatrice Keeber

I know [the Association] was once considered to be “for the last man standing” but I think it has outgrown that name. It is really now for the descendants of all the men in the 106th.

Veterans have contacted others, or the children of others of their generations to share information. I recently had an email greeting from the son of one of the vets Bill and I met at a local. mini-Reunion! People have connected through the National and Local reunions. My husband, Bill Keeber, enjoyed several local reunions and it was through the stories others told he was able to unlock the door behind which he kept memories he had not wanted to face for many years. He learned of [the Assn.] through a business contact who mentioned being in the 106th, which caught Bill's interest, and through their conversation, he worked up the nerve to attend a local reunion. It was a hard thing for him to do since he had buried harsh memories so deeply. It was truly cathartic for him to meet other vets who had experienced the same and/or worse than he did. I think he didn't then feel as isolated with those bad memories.

Bill was MIA for several days in a contested area. He once told me early in our acquaintance that he and the possibly 8 or 9 men with him had to dodge enemy and friendly mortar fire, fallen trees, freezing weather, and he ended up with Trench Foot. He said they had to [endure] icy conditions and wet boots that they replaced by taking boots off wounded men who had frozen to death before aid could reach them. He said snipers were an ever-present danger to them. Bill was the only one with a long-range weapon, and fortunately had been well trained in its use before he became a mortar gunner. Bill naturally accepted responsibility for things all his life, and I know he felt responsible for the others who did not have rifles. I think that was a heavy burden for a man only a couple of months past his nineteenth birthday! He also said they had only arrived on-line five days before the surprise German "putch." And their promised delivery of heavier clothing, waterproof boots and more rations never reached them before the start of action. They had to strip clothing and boots off dead men, but they could not bring themselves to take the dead soldiers' socks to replace their own wet ones. They could not leave those bodies with bare feet in that cold winter! He ruefully laughed about it a couple of years after his discharge, commenting that he knew that was a "dumb decision because those socks could not bring back to life those fallen warriors, but might have saved the toes of some live ones." As it turned out, Bill was the only one of that group who was returned to active duty after hospitalization for Trench Foot. Others suffered amputations and mobility disabilities. He also said they had to steel themselves to eat salvaged rations or starve! He had brought his weight back up to 120 pounds when I met him after the war in February, 1946...he still only weighed that little! He had no idea how much weight he lost on his 5'10" body, but he must have been skin and bones!

Bill seemed so relieved after a couple of local reunions and once even attended a National one alone. I believe he met one of the men in his original mortar unit, but I'm not sure if they recognized each other or not. He never said, but he did enjoy meeting with other vets as well as that man. Together, we attended one other National Reunion, but Bill's health began to fail and although he desperately wanted to return to Belgium to attend one of the reunions there, his health never permitted it. He also had determined he would definitely watch that movie on the History channel that was about the Battle of the Bulge, but he did not live long enough to fulfill that promise to himself when he passed away in December, 2007. I believe that show aired in January 2008. His family watched it for him.

For a lot of that history, I credit the 106th Assn., and encouragement of our sons and daughters, especially Anne, whose work as a Paralegal has given her research skills. And [thanks to] the 106th Assn. which began to convince Bill to face ghosts that had haunted him too long, giving him much more peace in his later years.

From Chris Edmonds, Chaplain, 106th Infantry Division Association

Spanning seven decades and linking a sprawling cast of unknown heroes from every corner of the country, NO SURRENDER is an unforgettable story of a father's extraordinary acts of valor that saved thousands of American soldiers in the treacherous final days of World War II and a son's journey to discover them.

Roddie Edmonds, a humble soldier from East Tennessee, rarely spoke about his experiences with the 106th Infantry during World War II. Not even his son Chris knew the full details of Roddie's capture at the Battle of the Bulge or his captivity in two Nazi POW camps.

Sparked by his daughter's family history project, Chris embarked on a years-long journey in a race against time to interview surviving POWs under Roddie's command and retracing his father's footsteps, from Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where a boyish Roddie transformed into a seasoned leader of men, to the patch of grass near Ziegenhain, Germany, where he looked evil in the eye and dared a Nazi to shoot.

A quintessential American story of bravery, compassion, and righteousness, NO SURRENDER is a shining example of the redemptive power of moral courage in a celebration of faith, family and selfless service.

In search of information on PFC James S. Hamilton:

I am currently researching and writing a short biography of a soldier that served in the 423rd Infantry Regiment of the 106th Division and was captured in the Battle of the Bulge. The soldier was PFC James S. Hamilton and he was grandfather's best friend growing up. PFC Hamilton died of malnutrition somewhere near Weimar, Germany on April 4, 1945. James had no children or siblings so my grandfather made an effort to keep his legacy alive and I'm trying to do the same. I was wondering if you'd consider adding his name to the KIA list as a non-battle casualty on the 106th division history page? Information can be sent to ewhoeffler@gmail.com. Evan Hoeffler

My name is Merrit Drucker and I live in Washington, D.C. I have been researching the subject of the "Rhine Meadow Camps" operated by the 106th Infantry Division from April to June of 1945 as part of a larger research project. I have some information about the camps — one member of the Association had provided me with copies of the relevant pages of "St. Vith: Lion in the Way." This seems to be an accurate summary of the situation, although brief. I am trying to answer some specific questions including why the 106th was selected for this mission. (Editor's Note: Merrit has several other specific questions relating to existing documents, Provisional Guard Battalions that were attached to the Division, and any other "accurate and reliable history of the period and the 106th Division role"). A Poem by Dale R. Carver from his book:
*Before the Veterans Die

A SONG FOR THE INFANTRY

“Into the wild blue yonder”
the Air Force proudly sings.
“From the Halls of Montezuma”
the Marine Hymn stoutly rings.

At the break of day, the Navy sings of setting sail.
The lumbering Field Artillery
“Hits the dusty trail.”

Scores of divisions of Infantry, an immense heroic throng,
hundreds of thousands of them died,
and they died without a song.

We will make for them a verse;
we will sing for them a song;
feeble though our tongues may be,
our hearts cannot be wrong.

We’re the Minute Men of Concord;
we set our country free.
We are founders of a nation,
the mighty Infantry.

We served with Grant at Vicksburg;
for Lee we wept and died.
In blue and grey formations
we fought and marched with pride.

And when the world tottered we crossed the troubled deep — no sunset on the crosses that mark our brothers’ sleep.

Stalwart comrades have we in the Field Artillery, cannons behind the rifles
of the fighting Infantry.

Marines are fearless fighters, but their ranks are few and small — in time of all-out warfare, for the Infantry, the call.

Afar the Air Force ranges in shining ships, well manned, but the foe was never vanquished till we occupied the land.

We’re the Minute Men of Concord,
We’ll keep our country free.
We are proud of our tradition —
the U.S. Infantry.

The 424th fought on until the Allies had the situation under control. During the final stages of the war in Europe Carver's battalion was assigned the task of running a POW camp at Bretzenheim, Germany.

Carver was awarded the Silver Star medal, the Bronze Star medal, and a battlefield promotion to 1st Lieutenant. He was a retired professor of engineering mechanics, having taught at Louisiana State University for 28 years. ## The Importance of a Mini Reunion

Our veterans will always remember December 16, 1944, when they were thrust into the chaos of war. The years may have thinned the ranks, but those who remain still have the pride of knowing they played an instrumental part in slowing — and ultimately defeating — the German war machine.

As it becomes more difficult to travel, especially with Covid-19 restrictions, it is even more important we attempt to connect with our vets. Any way you can, while practicing social distancing guidelines, and even doing so virtually, would be a great way to honor, cherish, and remember all of our veterans.

Date of death: February 6, 2021

Born in Hattiesburg, Mississippi on May 20, 1925, to parents Harry and Edith Bell, Harry attended Hattiesburg High School and joined the U.S. Army upon graduation in 1945. He was sent to Auburn University under the Army Special Training Program for advanced students. Due to increased need to fill newly formed infantry divisions, all specialized programs were cancelled, and he and others were sent to the 106th division at Camp Atterbury, Indiana. After field maneuvers, his division was sent overseas to France, then through Belgium to the front lines in the Ardennes Forest in Germany. Soon thereafter, Germany began their offensive known as the Battle of the Bulge. After three days of fighting, his unit was surrounded and captured. He and others were sent to Stalag 9b in Bad Orb, Germany. He, along with many other POWs were liberated in the spring of 1945 and returned to the United States. He was stationed at Fort Benning, GA until discharge at Camp Shelby, MS in December of 1945. Upon discharge, he returned to Auburn where he received his degree in electrical engineering. While he was there, he joined Sigma Chi Fraternity

He served in several positions through the company until he was appointed Vice President, Engineering and Operations. During his tenure, he was responsible for the erection of two large generating units at Plant Watson and the construction of Plant Daniel in Jackson County.
